*YOU who have journeyed the wide world through—Knowing the Old World as the New,—
Cruise or pilgrimage or shrine,
Found you ever so all-divine
A haven as first was yours and mine
Out to old Aunt Mary's?*

Out to Old Aunt Mary's

Howard Chodler Christy 1904

The scent of the cherry-blossoms blown
After us, in the roadway lone

“Me and you”—And the morning fair,
With the dewdrops twinkling everywhere;
The scent of the cherry-blossoms blown
After us, in the roadway lone,
Our capering shadows onward thrown—
Out to old Aunt Mary’s!

Out by the barn-lot and down the lane
We patter along in the dust again

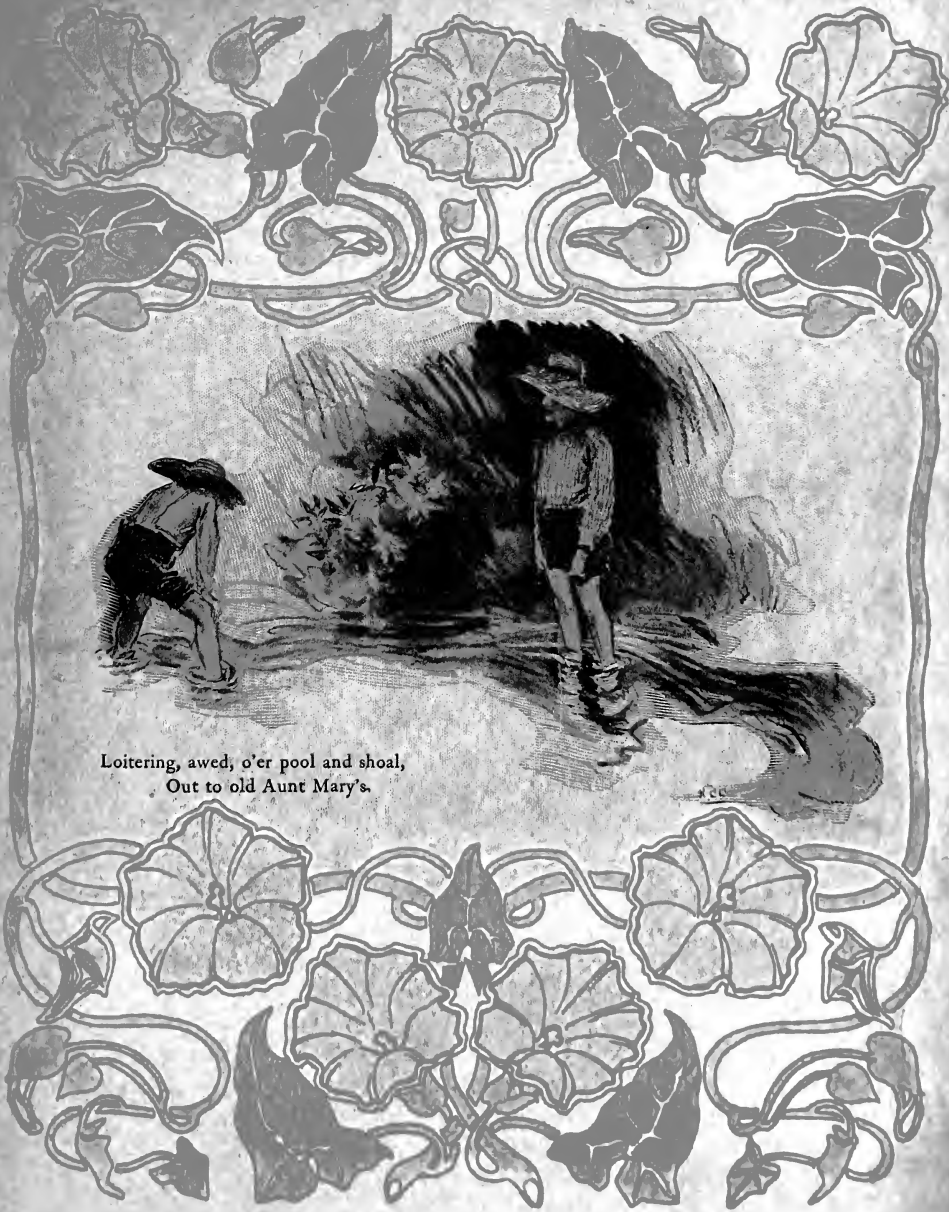

A decorative border of stylized flowers and leaves, possibly morning glories, frames the text. The flowers are arranged in a repeating pattern along the top and bottom edges, with leaves and vines connecting them. The style is simple and elegant, typical of early 20th-century book design.

It all comes back so clear to-day!
Though I am as bald as you are gray,—
Out by the barn-lot and down the lane
We patter along in the dust again,
As light as the tips of the drops of the rain,
Out to old Aunt Mary's.

Loitering, awed, o'er pool and shoal,
Out to old Aunt Mary's.

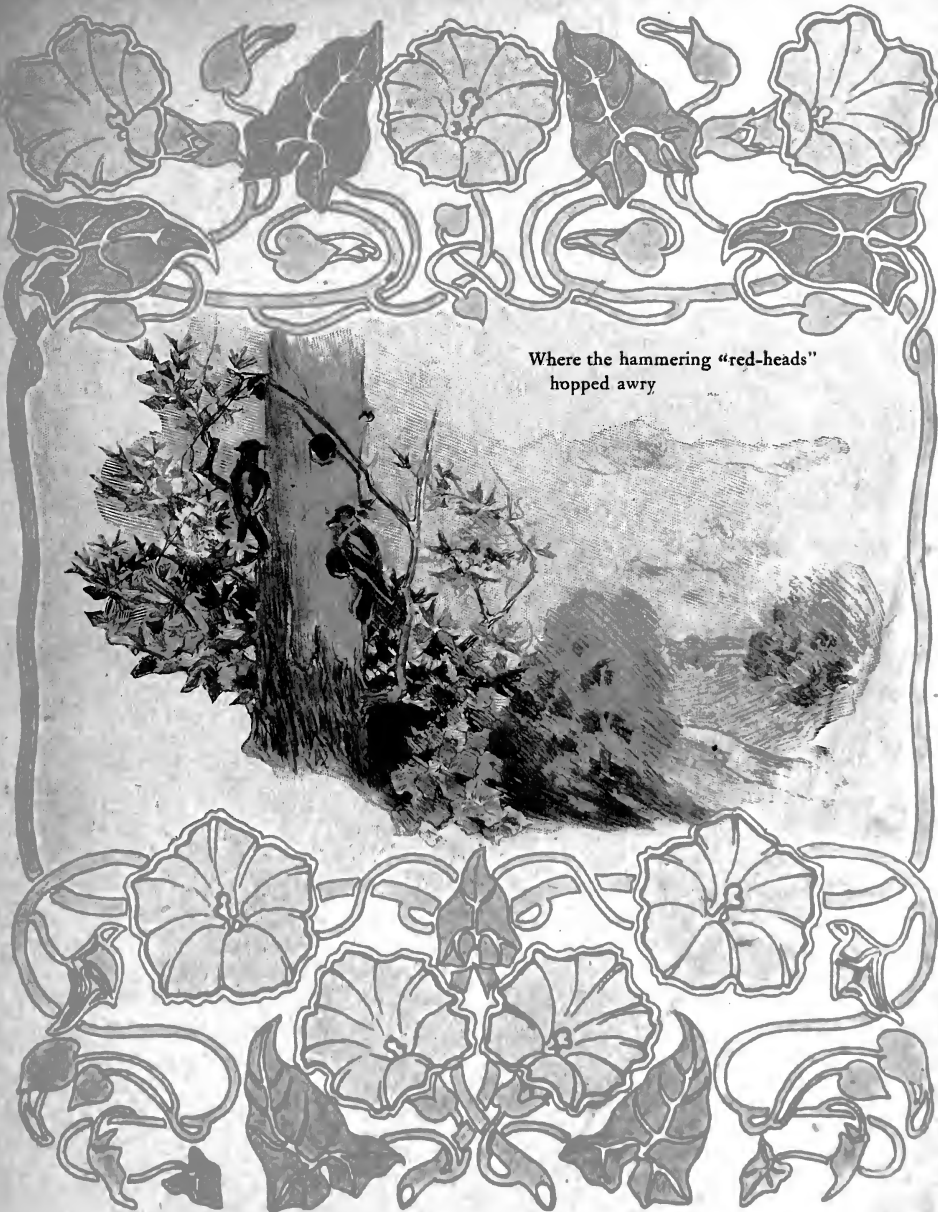

The few last houses of the town;
Then on, up the high creek-bluffs and down;
Past the squat tollgate, with its well-sweep pole;
The bridge, and "The old 'Babtizin'-hole",
Loitering, awed, o'er pool and shoal
Out to old Aunt Mary's,

Where the hammering "red-heads"
hopped awry

We cross the pasture, and through the wood,
Where the old gray snag of the poplar stood
Where the hammering "red-heads"
hopped awry,
And the buzzard "raised" in the "clearing"-sky
And lolled and circled, as we went by
Out to old Aunt Mary's.

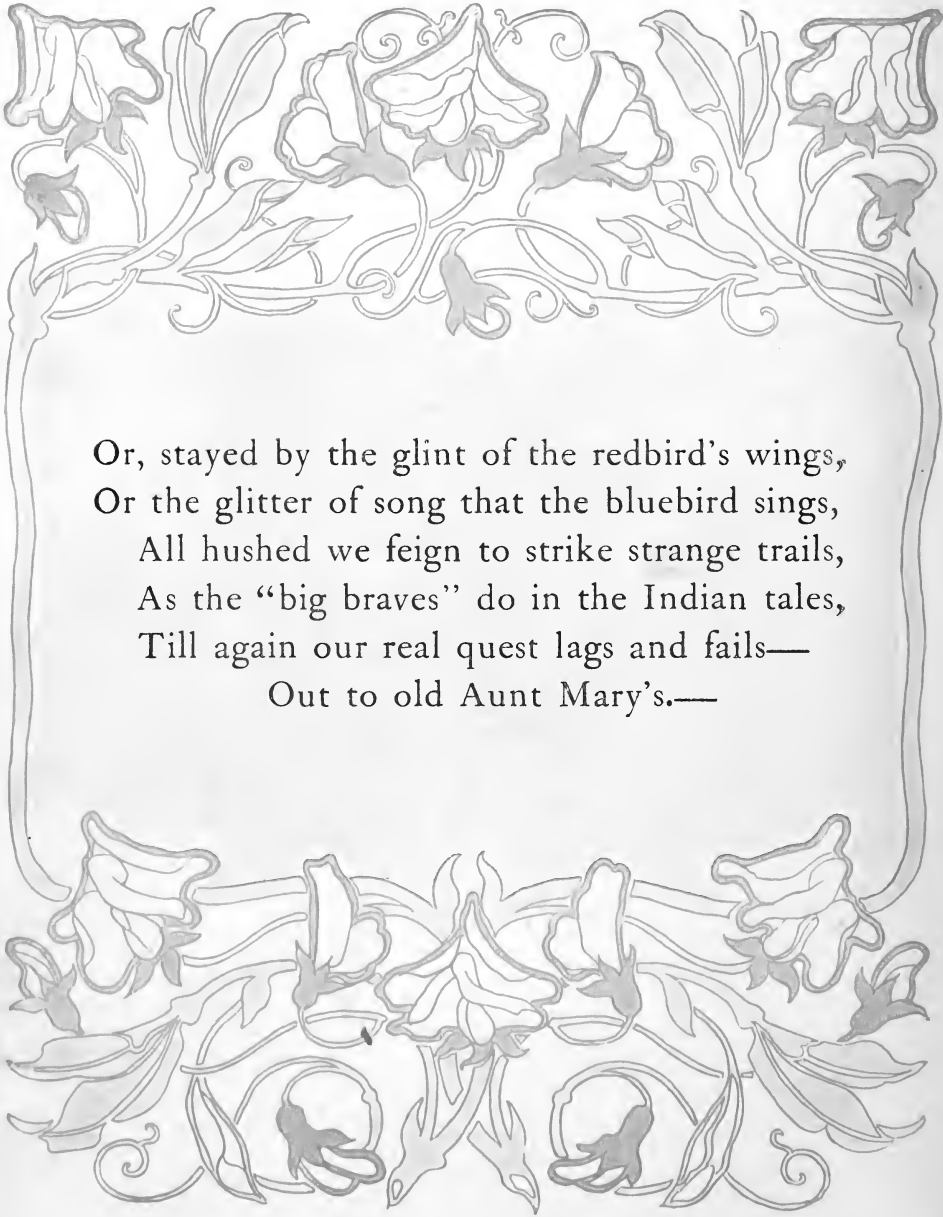

— André Claudon, Paris, 1909

Or, stayed by the glint of the redbird's wings,
Or the glitter of song that the bluebird sings.

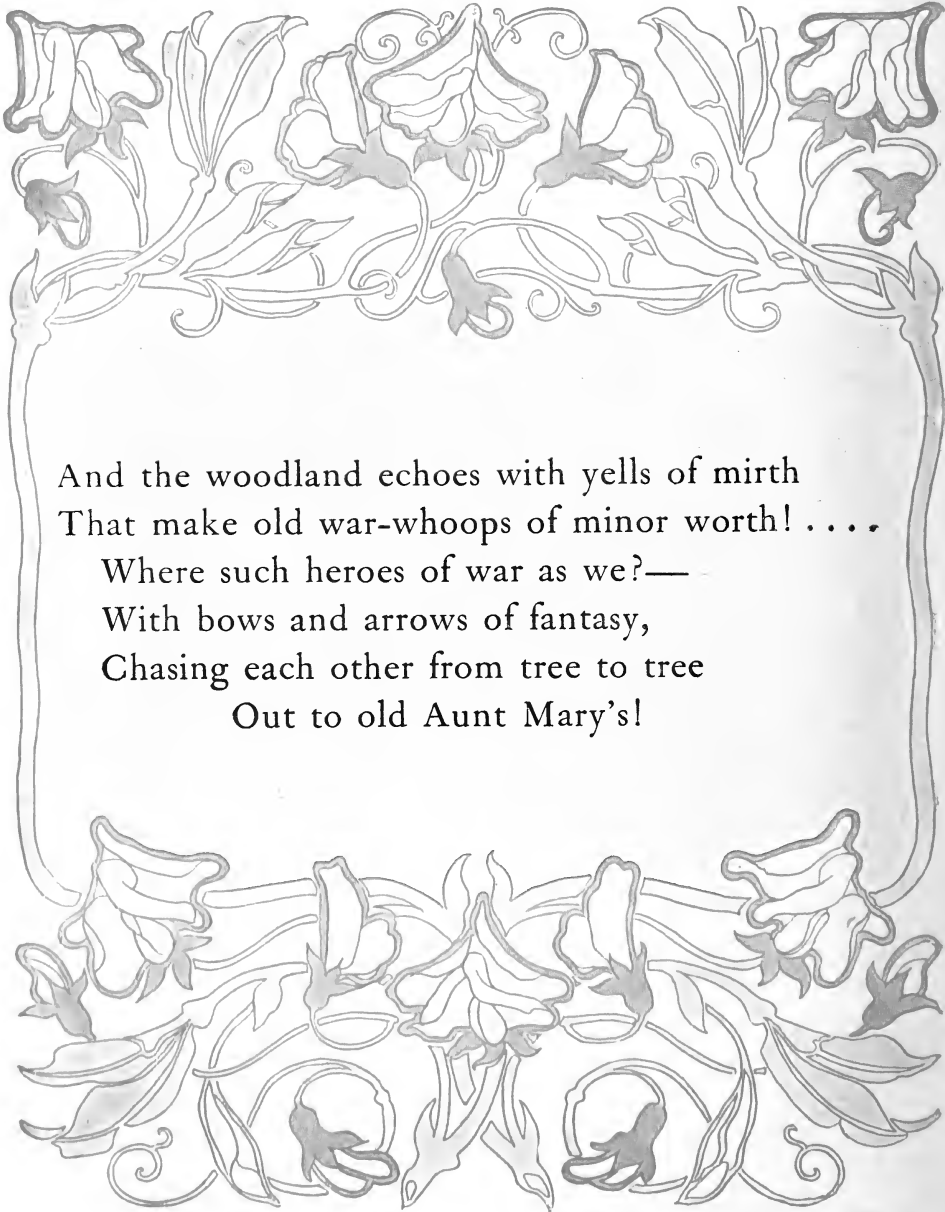

A decorative border of stylized flowers and vines frames the text. The top border features large, open flowers with prominent stamens and leaves. The bottom border features similar flowers, some in bud, with scrolling vines and leaves. The sides of the border are composed of continuous, flowing vine-like patterns.

Or, stayed by the glint of the redbird's wings,
Or the glitter of song that the bluebird sings,
All hushed we feign to strike strange trails,
As the "big braves" do in the Indian tales,
Till again our real quest lags and fails—
Out to old Aunt Mary's.—

Howard Chandler Christy, 1899.

A decorative border of stylized flowers and vines frames the text. The top border features large, bell-shaped flowers with prominent stamens, while the bottom border features smaller, more delicate flowers. The vines are intricately curled and leafed.

And the woodland echoes with yells of mirth
That make old war-whoops of minor worth!
Where such heroes of war as we?—
With bows and arrows of fantasy,
Chasing each other from tree to tree
Out to old Aunt Mary's!

Our cares behind, and our hearts ahead
Out to old Aunt Mary's.

And then in the dust of the road again;
And the teams we met, and the countrymen;
And the long highway, with sunshine spread
As thick as butter on country bread,
Our cares behind, and our hearts ahead
Out to old Aunt Mary's.—

— Howard Chandler Christy 1894

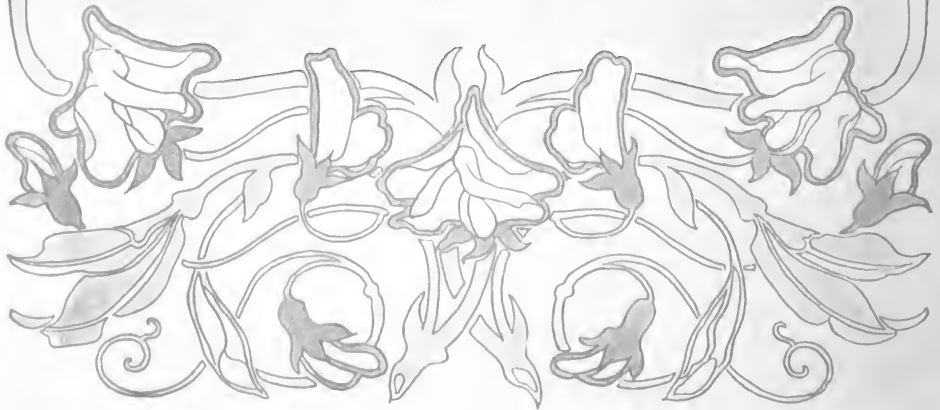

Where dwelt our Saint in her simple cot—
Out to old Aunt Mary's

For only, now, at the road's next bend
To the right we could make out the gable-end
Of the fine old Huston homestead—not
Half a mile from the sacred spot
Where dwelt our Saint in her simple cot—
Out to old Aunt Mary's.

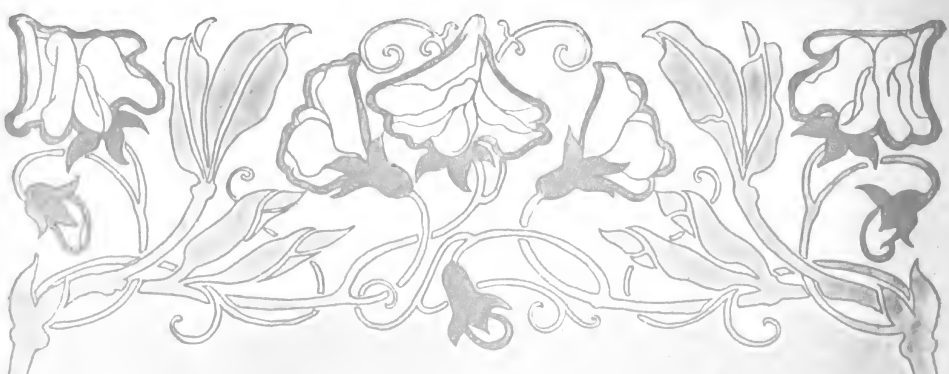

Edward Chandler Christy, 1884

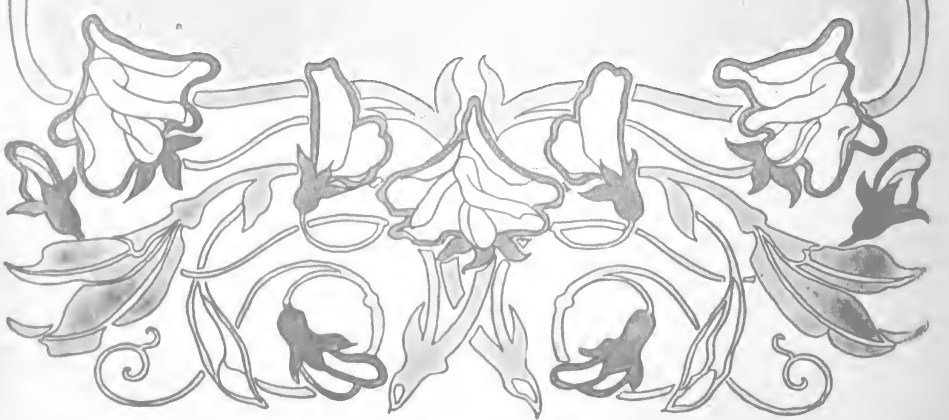

And wasn't it good for a boy to be
Out to old Aunt Mary's

Why, I see her now in the open door
Where the little gourds grew up the sides and o'er
The clapboard roof!—And her face—ah, me!
Wasn't it good for a boy to see—
And wasn't it good for a boy to be
Out to old Aunt Mary's?—

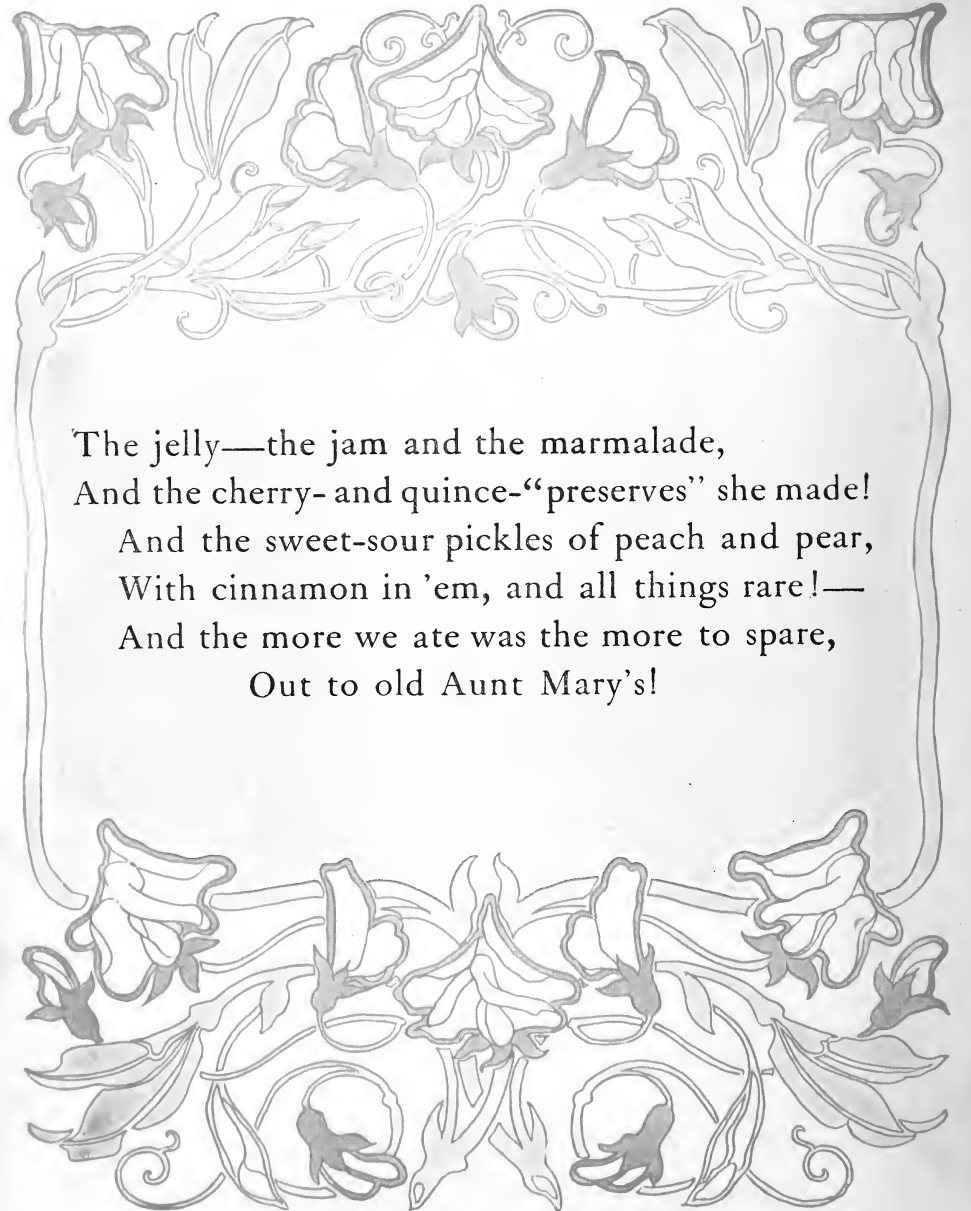

— Howard Chandler Christy 1911

The jelly—the jam and the marmalade,
And the cherry- and quince-“preserves” she made

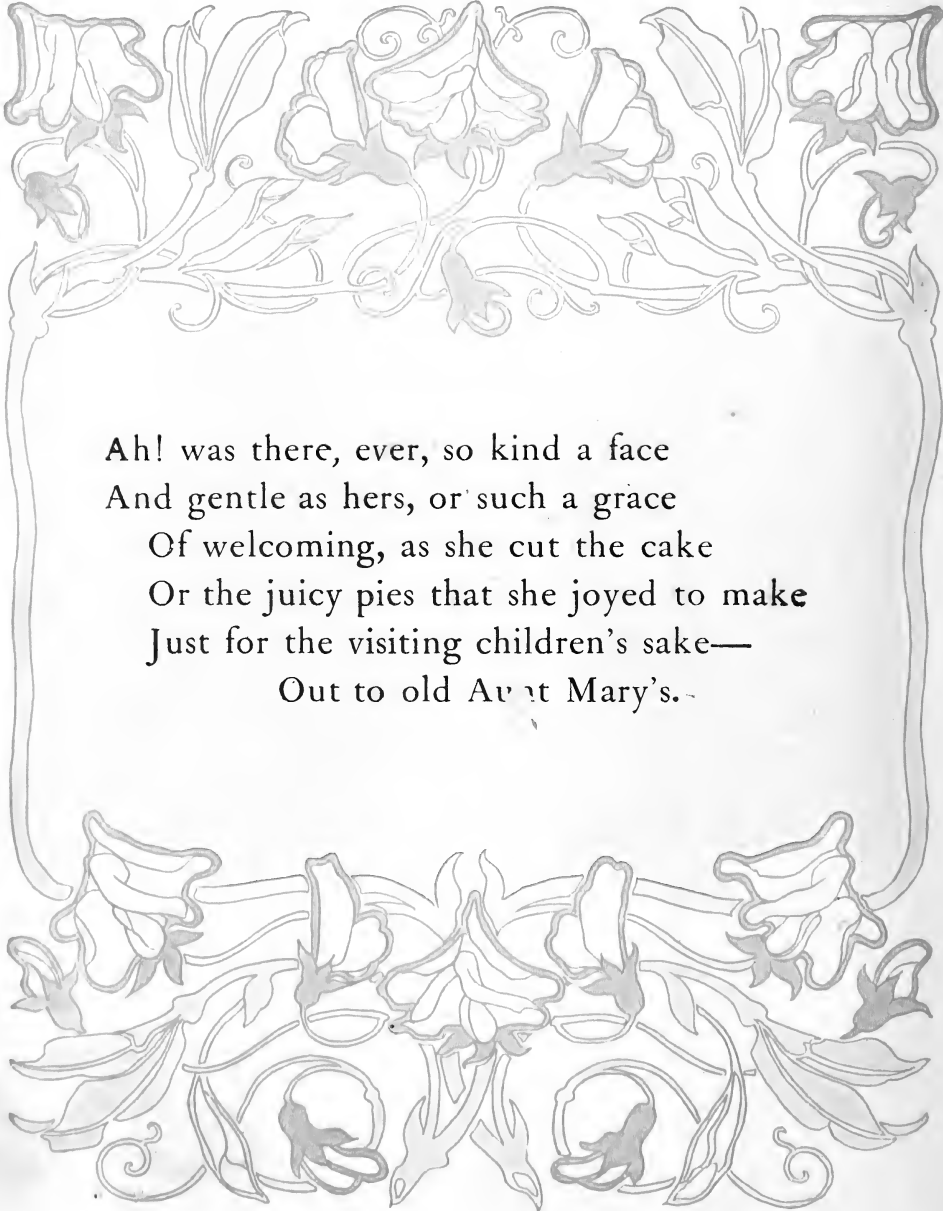

'The jelly—the jam and the marmalade,
And the cherry- and quince-“preserves” she made!
And the sweet-sour pickles of peach and pear,
With cinnamon in 'em, and all things rare!—
And the more we ate was the more to spare,
Out to old Aunt Mary's!

— Samuel Chandler Christy 1904

Just for the visiting children's sake—
Out to old Aunt Mary's

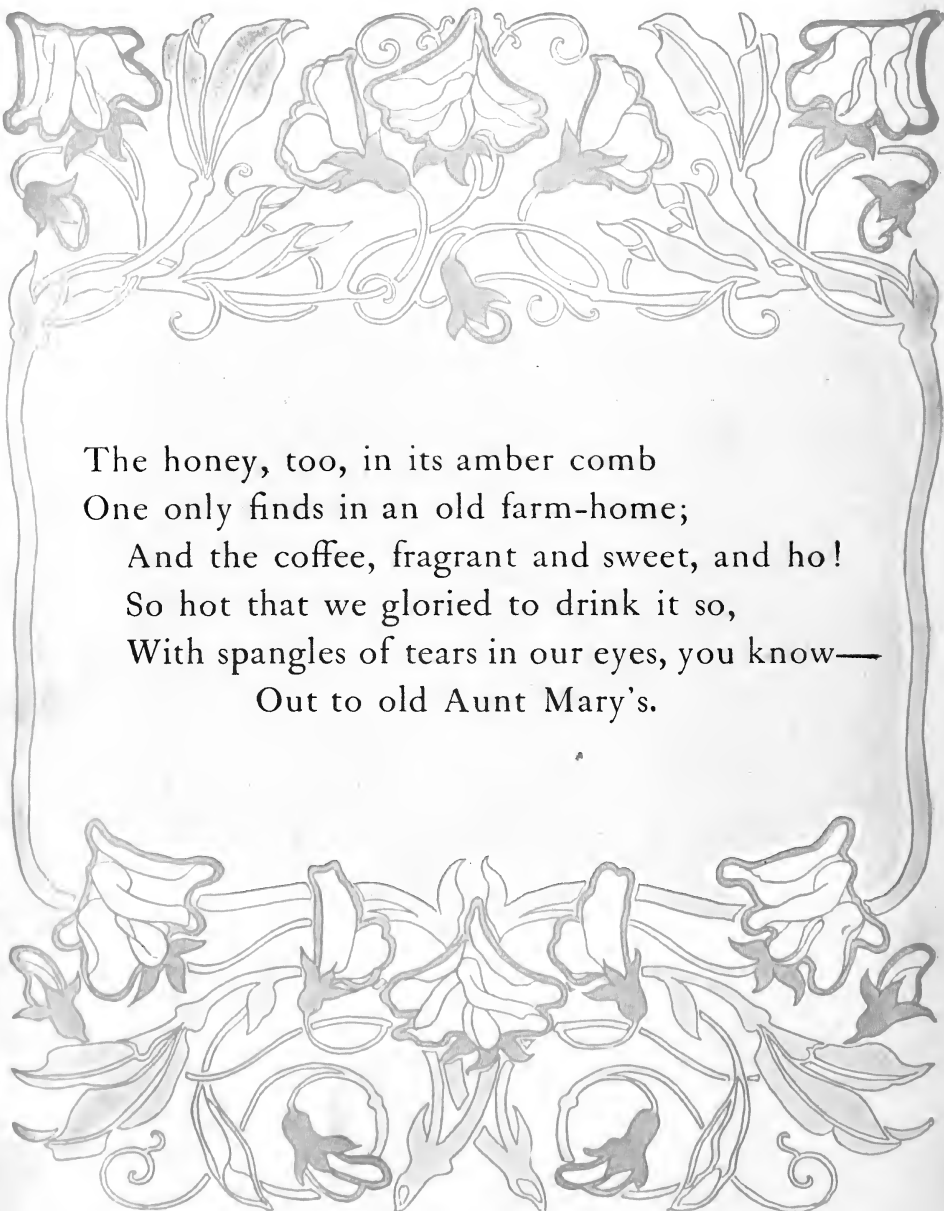

Ah! was there, ever, so kind a face
And gentle as hers, or such a grace
Of welcoming, as she cut the cake
Or the juicy pies that she joyed to make
Just for the visiting children's sake—
Out to old Aunt Mary's.

—Eugène Chénier, Chénier, 17

The honey, too, in its amber comb
One only finds in an old farm-home

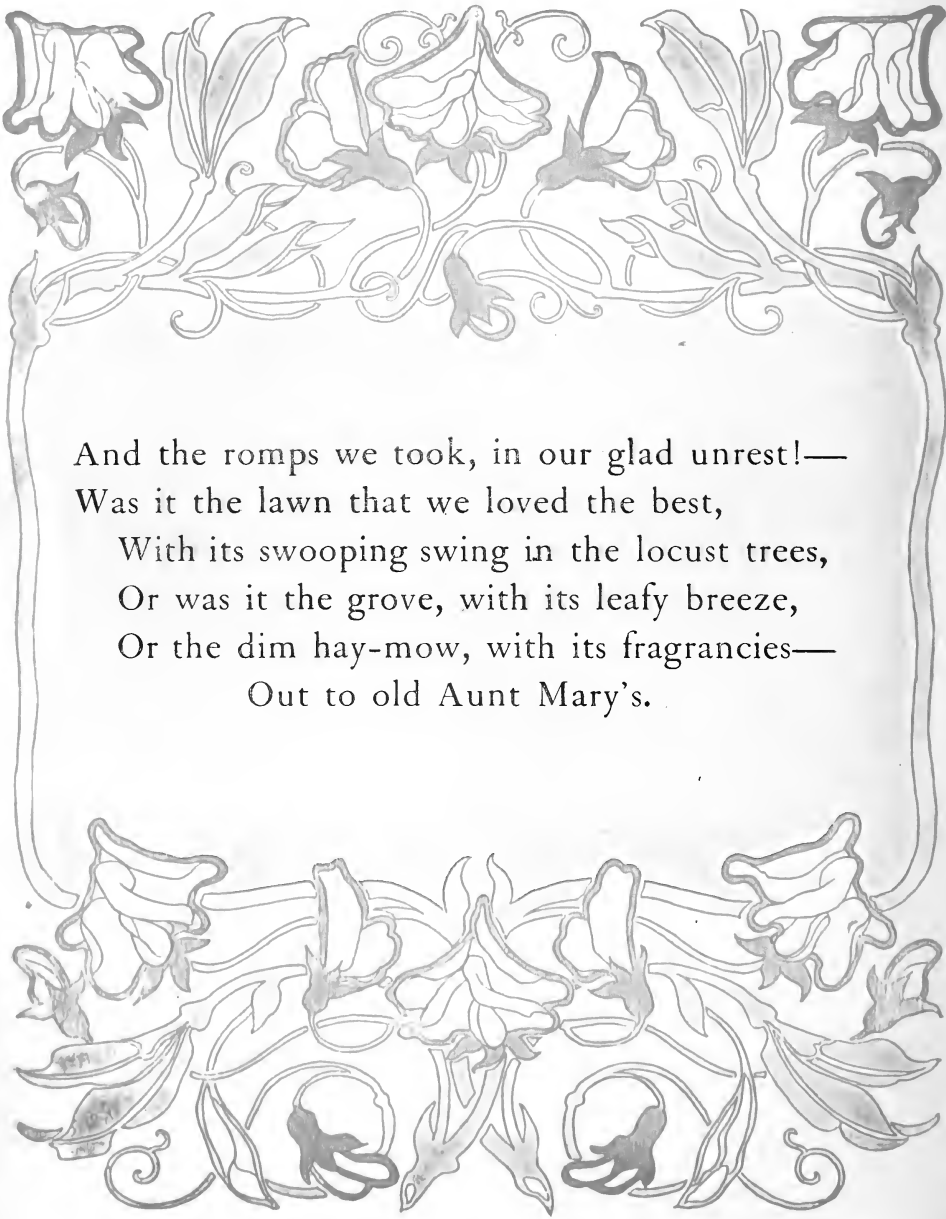

The honey, too, in its amber comb
One only finds in an old farm-home;
And the coffee, fragrant and sweet, and ho!
So hot that we gloried to drink it so,
With spangles of tears in our eyes, you know—
Out to old Aunt Mary's.

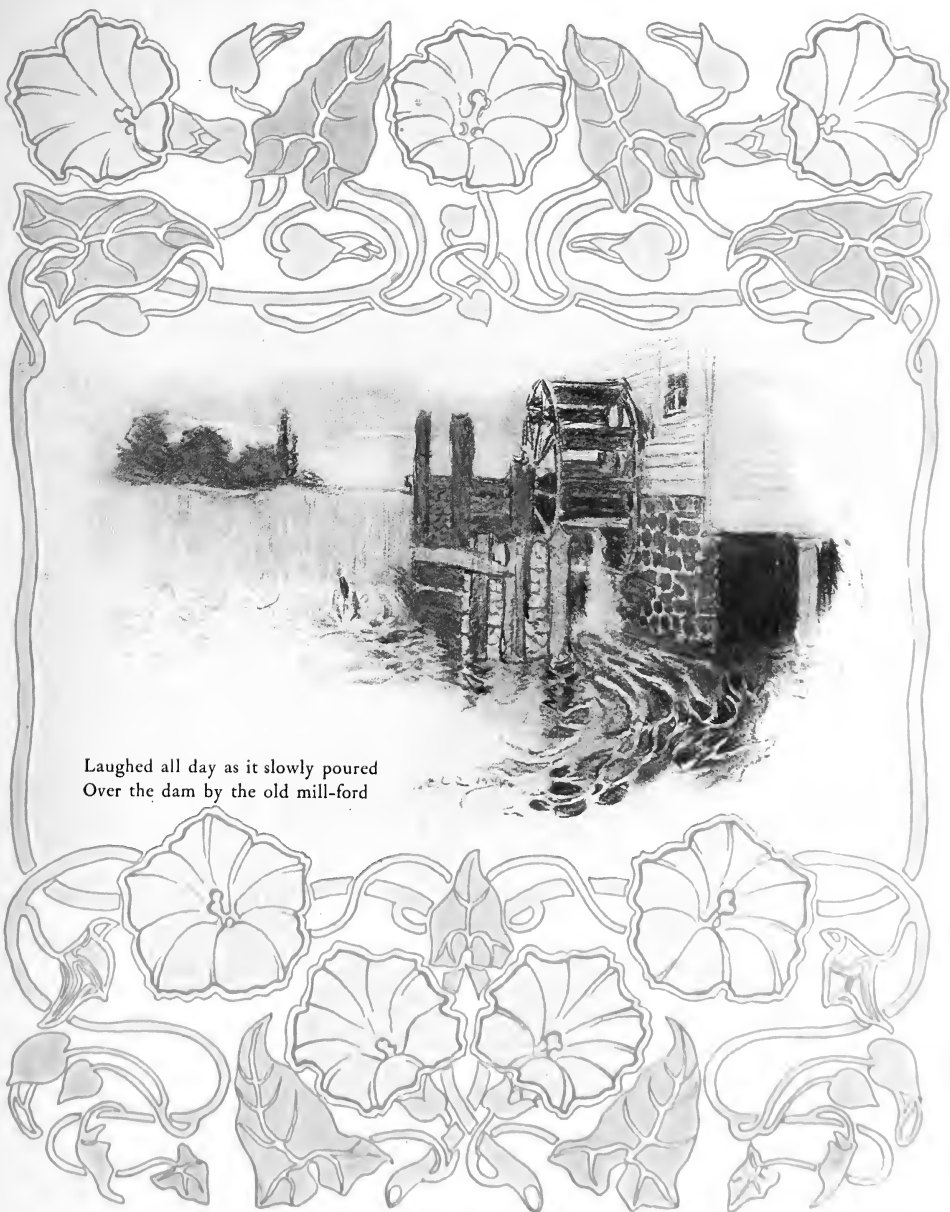

Or was it the grove, with its leafy breeze,
Or the dim hay-mow, with its fragrances

A decorative border of stylized flowers and leaves, possibly morning glories, framing the text. The flowers are light-colored with dark outlines, and the leaves are elongated and pointed.

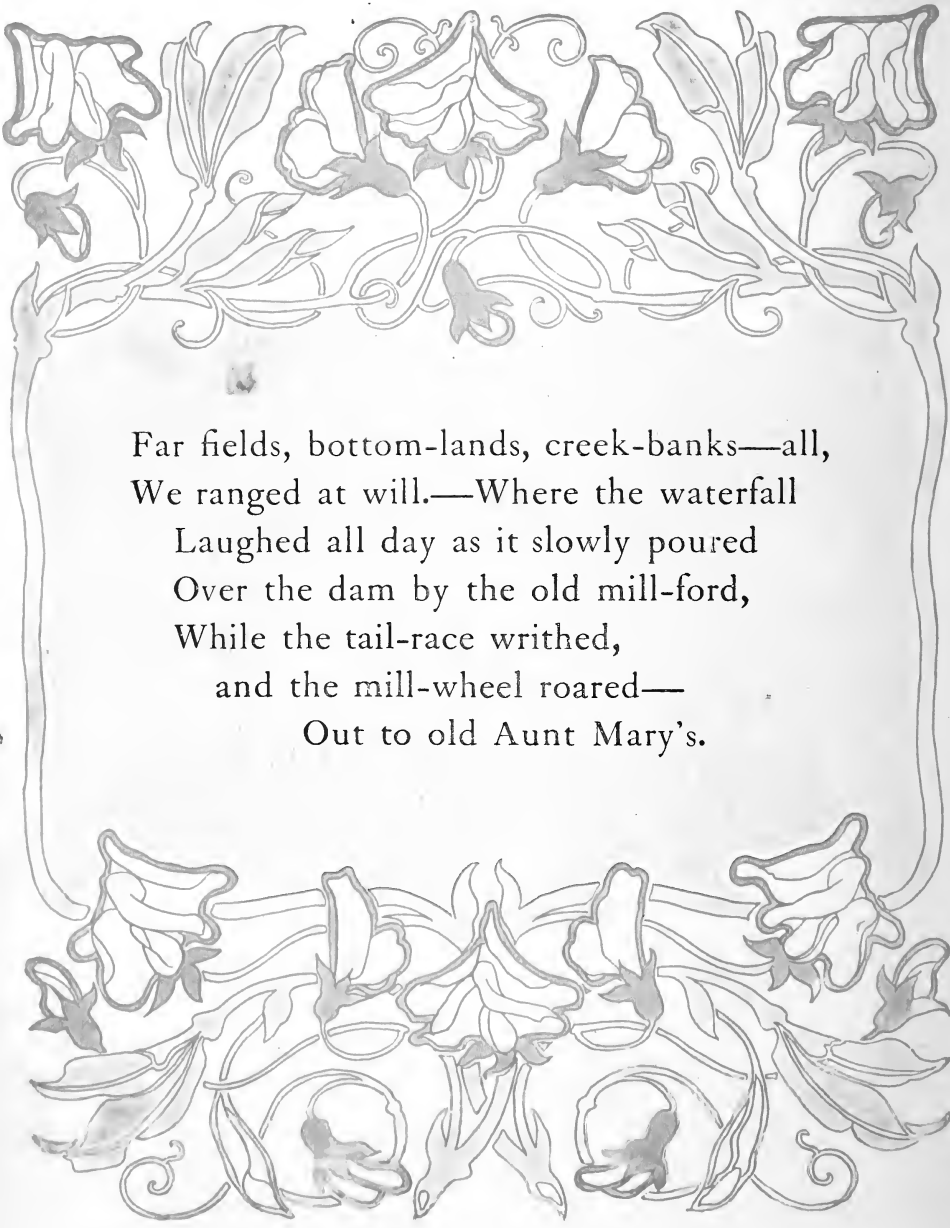

And the romps we took, in our glad unrest!—
Was it the lawn that we loved the best,
 With its swooping swing in the locust trees,
Or was it the grove, with its leafy breeze,
Or the dim hay-mow, with its fragrances—
 Out to old Aunt Mary's.

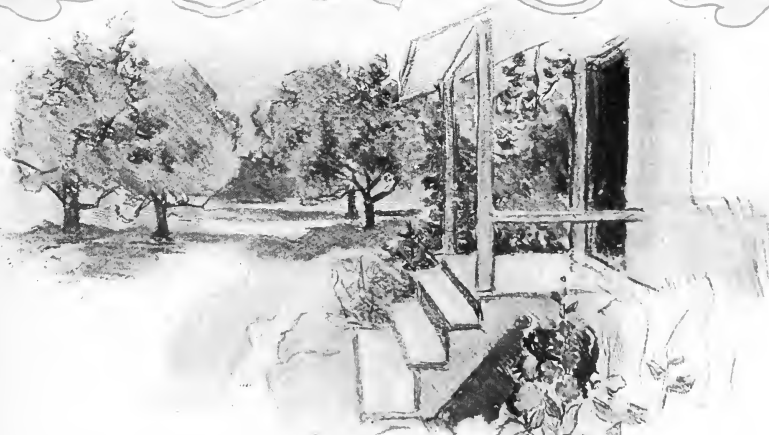

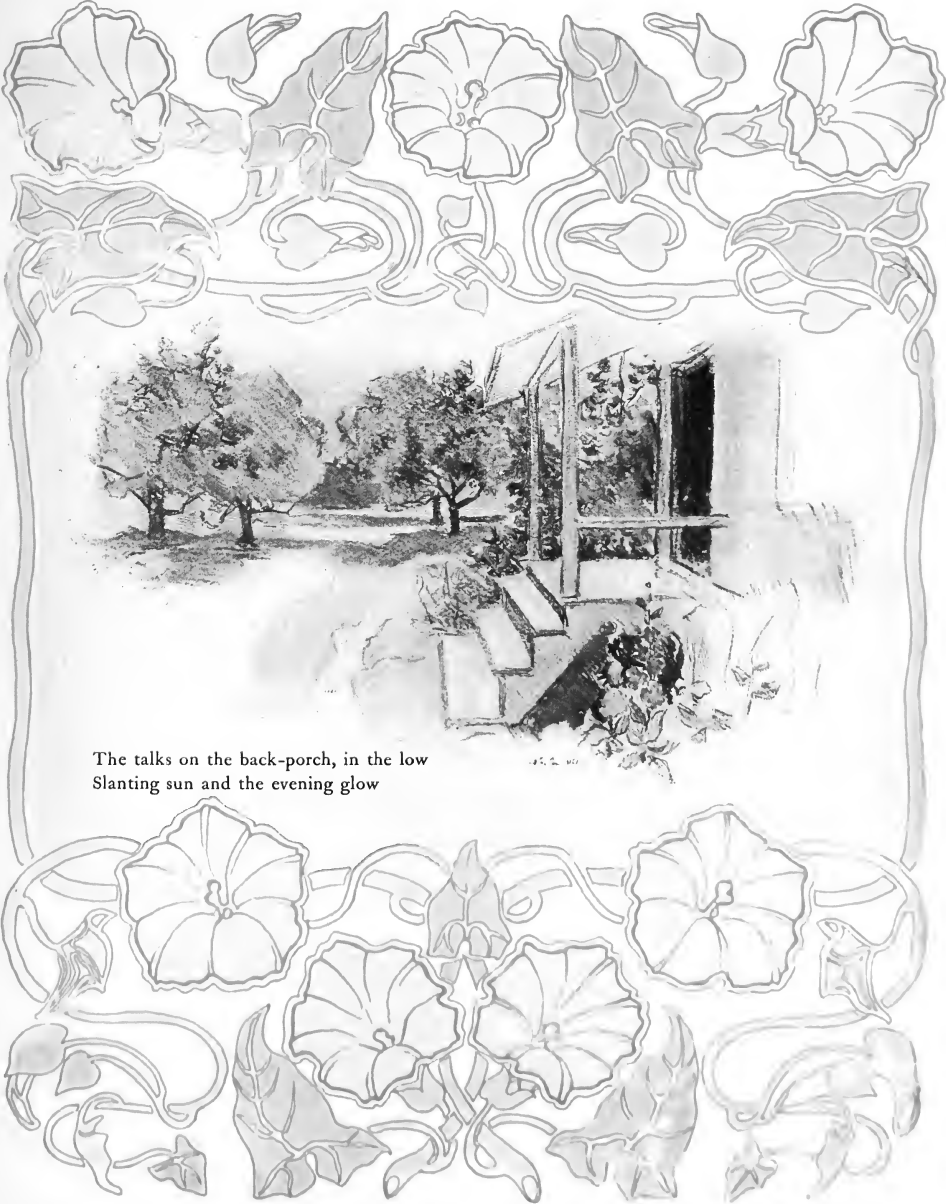

Laughed all day as it slowly poured
Over the dam by the old mill-ford

Far fields, bottom-lands, creek-banks—all,
We ranged at will.—Where the waterfall
Laughed all day as it slowly poured
Over the dam by the old mill-ford,
While the tail-race writhed,
and the mill-wheel roared—
Out to old Aunt Mary's.

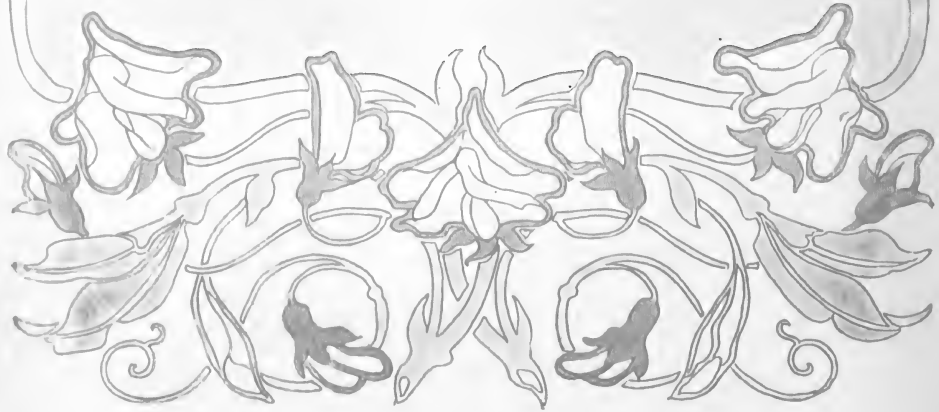

The talks on the back-porch, in the low
Slanting sun and the evening glow

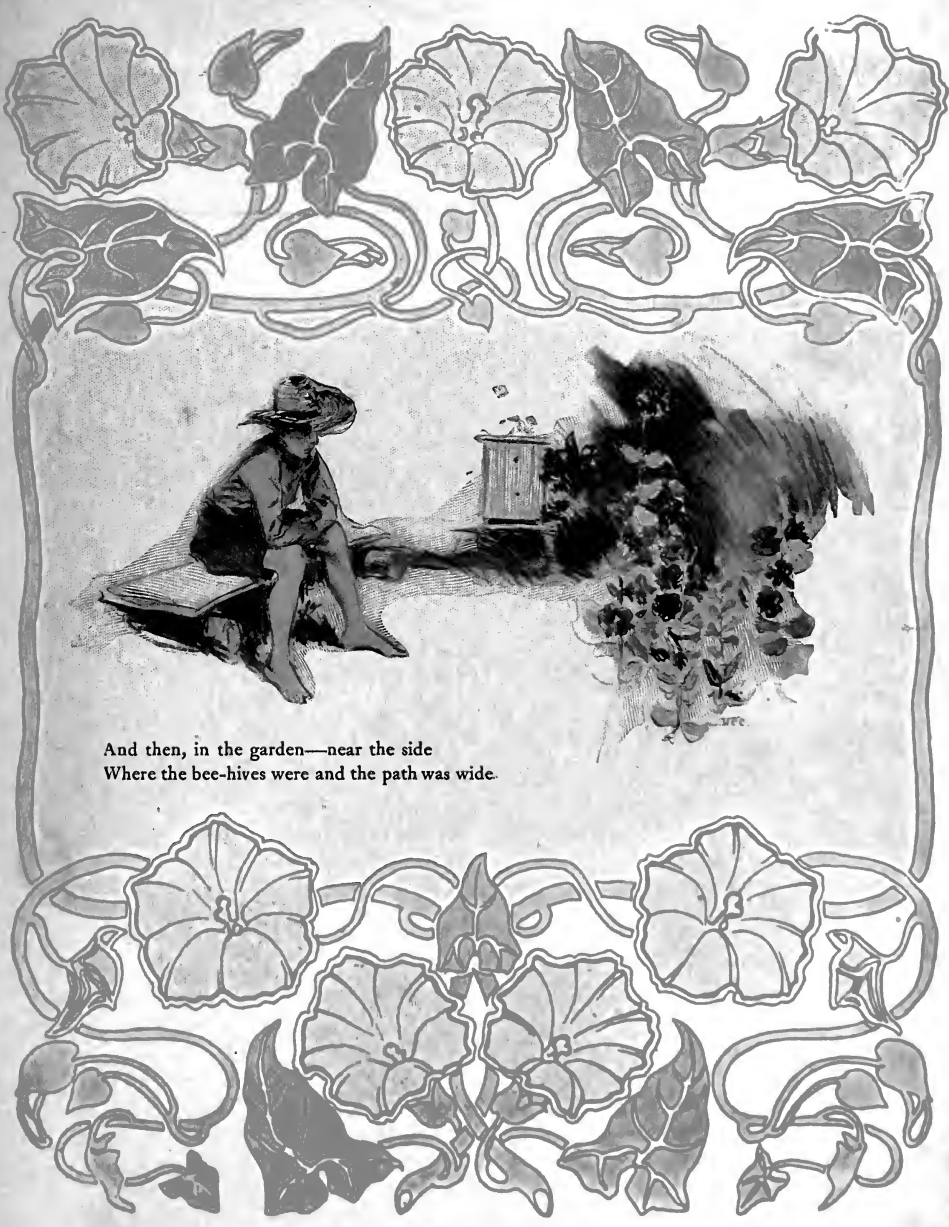

But home, with Aunty in nearer call,
That was the best place, after all!—
The talks on the back-porch, in the low
Slanting sun and the evening glow,
With the voice of counsel that touched us so,
Out to old Aunt Mary's.

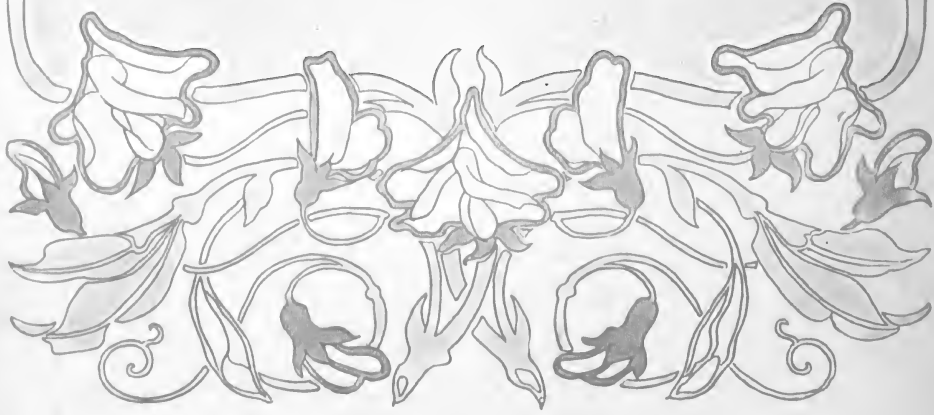

And then, in the garden—near the side
Where the bee-hives were and the path was wide.

And then, in the garden—near the side
Where the bee-hives were and the path was wide,—
The apple-house—like a fairy cell—
With the little square door we knew so well,
And the wealth inside
but our tongues could tell—
Out to old Aunt Mary's.

From Charles Cady, 1894.

Where the swinging shelves
and the crocks were kept,
Where the cream in a golden languor slept

W. C. 1908

And the old spring-house, in the cool green gloom
Of the willow trees,—and the cooler room
Where the swinging shelves
 and the crocks were kept,
Where the cream in a golden languor slept,
While the waters gurgled and laughed
 and wept—
 Out to old Aunt Mary's.

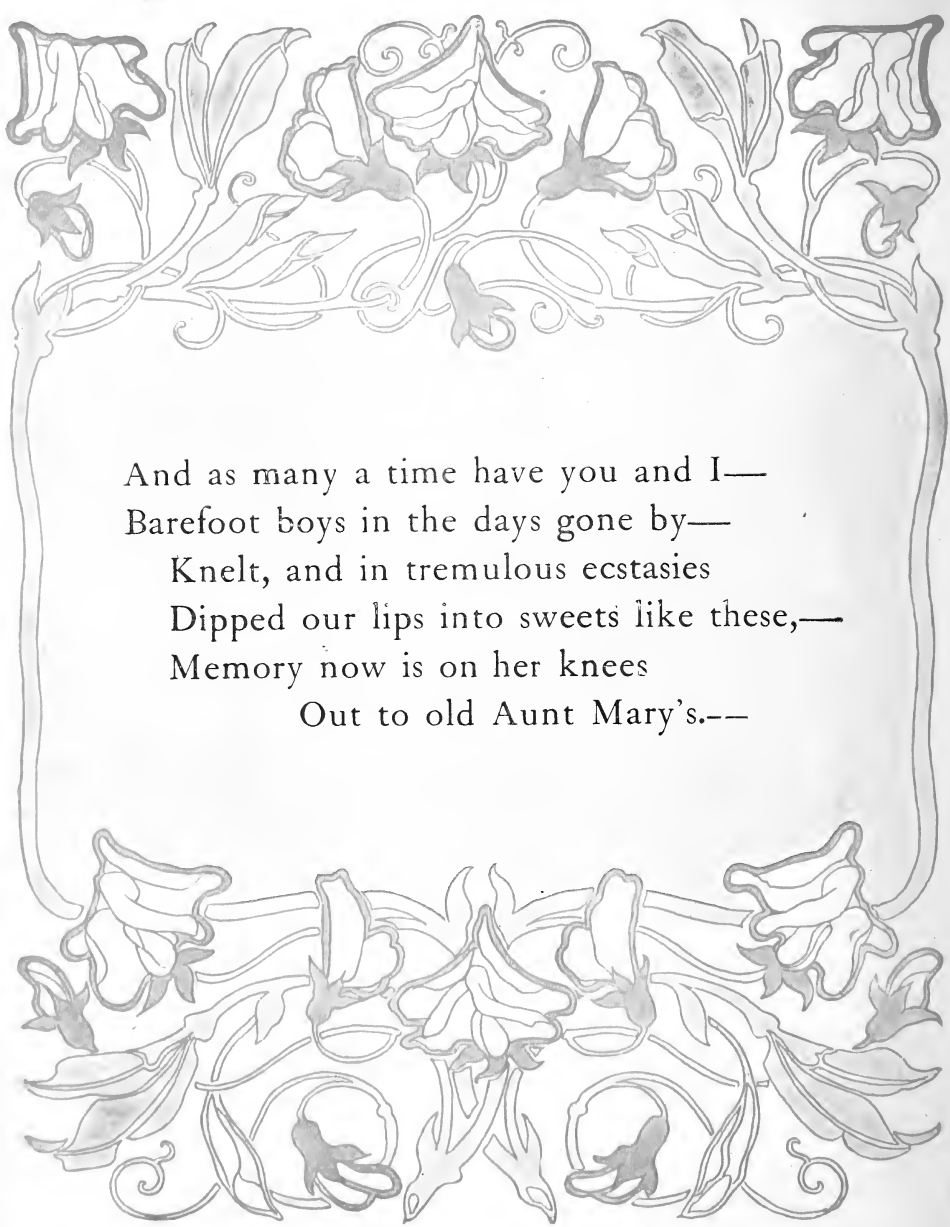

Memory now is on her knees
Out to old Aunt Mary's -

A decorative border of stylized flowers and leaves surrounds the text. The top border features a row of flowers with long, pointed petals and leaves. The bottom border is similar, with flowers and leaves arranged in a symmetrical pattern. The sides of the border are composed of vertical lines with small, leaf-like shapes at the top and bottom.

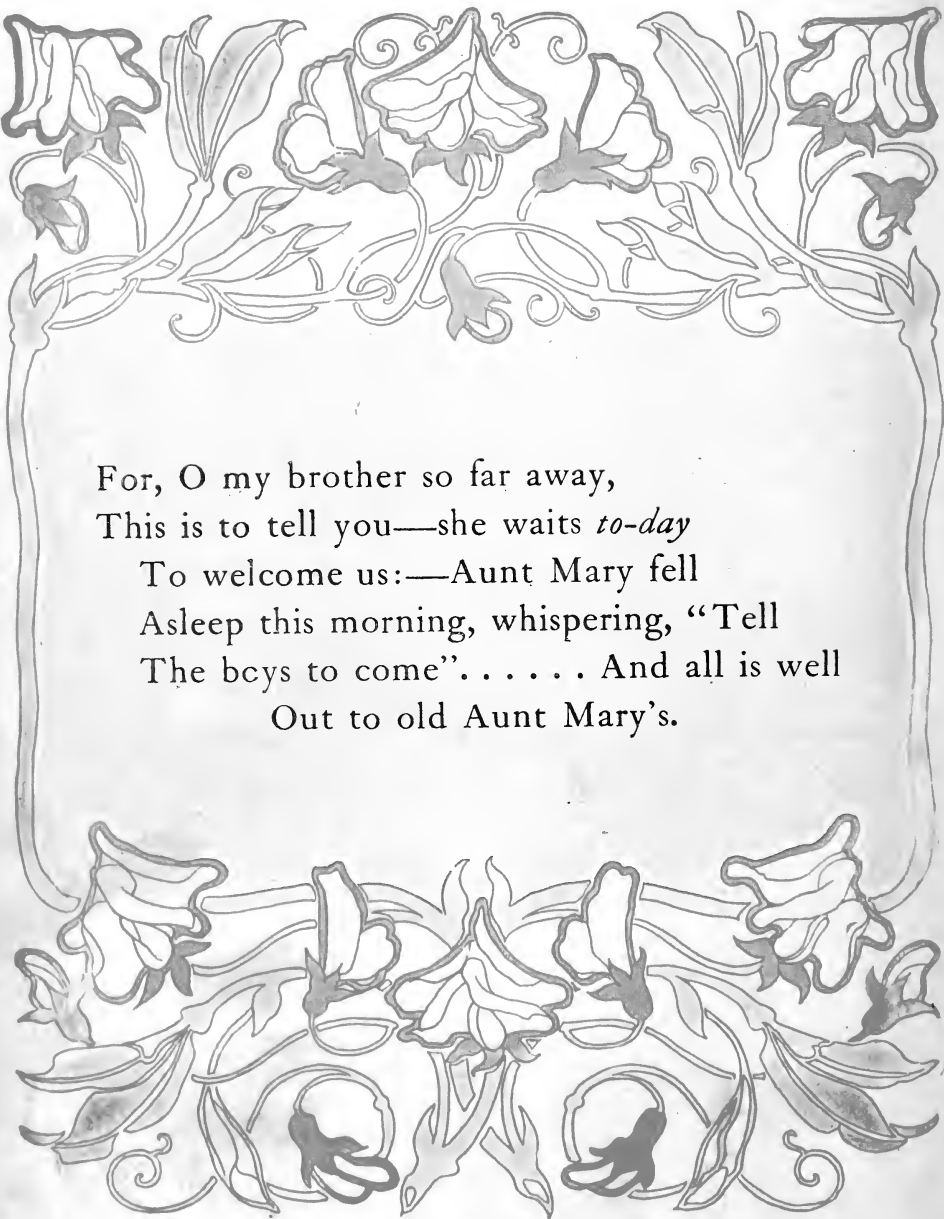

And as many a time have you and I—
Barefoot boys in the days gone by—
Knelt, and in tremulous ecstasies
Dipped our lips into sweets like these,—
Memory now is on her knees
Out to old Aunt Mary's.—

Robert Chandler Christy 1907

..... And all is well
Out to old Aunt Mary's

A decorative border of stylized flowers and leaves, possibly roses, framing the text. The flowers are arranged in a symmetrical pattern along the top and bottom edges, with leaves and stems connecting them.

For, O my brother so far away,
This is to tell you—she waits to-day
To welcome us:—Aunt Mary fell
Asleep this morning, whispering, “Tell
The bcys to come”. And all is well
Out to old Aunt Mary’s.
